I have recently heard that military bases are no longer accepting Virginia driver's licenses as valid ID for entrance due to the Real ID Act. Yet, your website says that Virginia has an extension for compliance until 10/10/2016. Which is correct and what does Virginia need to do to become compliant?

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

You can find an acceptable list of ID's for airline travel from TSA here:
<http://www.tsa.gov/traveler-information/acceptable-ids>

If a child is younger than 18, they are not required to have ID to travel. They'll just need their boarding pass.

Subject: REAL ID Act: question

Hello,

Based on this site (<http://www.dhs.gov/real-id-enforcement-brief>), does it mean that the earliest possible date that residents from NJ, PA, CA would have to show their passports, instead of their driver's license, to pass TSA security check is Jan 10, 2016?

And if so, in this scenario, would the three-month grace period begin on Jan 10, 2016 and end on Apr 10, 2016?

Thank you in advance.

Could you please advise me as to the current status of the documents required in order to fly on a commercial airline. I have people that will be coming to see me in Florida in April of 2016 and they do not have either an enhanced drivers license nor a passport. Will it still be all right for them to use their regular state drivers picture license? This is in regard to New York State. Please advise. Thank you in advance.

DHS requires visitors to present government-issued identification for access to its facilities. For visitors presenting a state-issued driver's license or identification card, DHS may only accept such documents if they are issued by states that are REAL ID compliant. If the state that issued your license is listed as noncompliant, please bring an alternate form of government-issued photo ID – such as a passport or Federal employee, military, or veteran identification card to facilitate access.

Subject: questions on Real ID Phase 4 from New York Times Travel section.

hi there. i'm working on an article for the NYT Travel section updating readers on the Real ID Act as it pertains to identification when boarding commercial flights.

i have a few questions and wanted to clarify some of the information I've read from other sources and would sincerely appreciate a call from someone in your office to do so.

my deadline is ASAP as we're trying to include this in our next issue. i've included most of my questions below in case its more convenient for someone to respond by email:

- to clarify for our readers, the Real ID Act was passed in 2005, and enforcement began in 2013, with the first of four phases. is that correct?

- when do you anticipate the evaluation noted on the DHS "Real ID In Brief" webpage to conclude?

- when do you anticipate Phase 4 will officially be enforced (extensions excluded), as it pertains to boarding commercial aircraft?

- i see from the DHS "Real ID In Brief" webpage, that 18 states/territories are currently awaiting approval on an extension to continue use of their current drivers licenses when boarding commercial aircraft. am i correct that this extension would likely only be through Jan. 10? what happens if they are denied the extension?

- am i correct that New Hampshire is the only state with an extension through June 1, 2016? if so, why is that?

- how long have non-compliant states known about the roll out of Phase 4 as it pertains to boarding commercial aircraft?

- why do you think some states have not changed their drivers license requirements in order to comply with the Act?

- can you please confirm which ID's are acceptable as a second form of identification, to be used by those from states with non-compliant drivers' licenses?

- is the 3-month forgiveness period mentioned in your latest press release supposed to occur prior to the expiration of a state's extension period, or after the extension period expires?

thanks for any assistance.

DHS is in the process of issuing and renewing REAL ID extensions. Although current extensions expired on October 10, DHS has provided a three-month grace period to allow states to provide additional information and take any necessary corrective action to warrant the receipt of an additional extension. By the time this grace period ends on January 10, 2016, DHS will provide Federal agencies with a complete, updated list of states subject to REAL ID enforcement.

- So far, the following states have had their extensions renewed through October 10, 2016: Arizona, Arkansas, Idaho, Kentucky, Michigan, Oklahoma, Oregon, Rhode Island, Texas, and Virginia.
- Louisiana and New York, which did not previously have extensions, have received extensions until October 10, 2016.
- New Hampshire has an extension until June 1, 2016, and will re-evaluate its status in the first half of 2016 to determine if the state will receive a further extension.

Federal agencies may accept driver's licenses and identification cards issued by compliant states and from states with an extension for accessing Federal facilities and entering nuclear power plants. DHS will continue to renew extensions for states on a rolling basis, with the current list found on the DHS website (<http://www.dhs.gov/real-id-enforcement-brief>).

In summary:

- Federal agencies may accept driver's licenses and identification cards for official purposes from compliant states and from states with an extension that expired on October 10, 2015. DHS will provide an updated extension list by January 10, 2016 (the date when the 3-month grace period expires).
- In addition, Federal agencies may now accept driver's licenses and identification cards issued by Louisiana, New Hampshire, and New York.
- The only states for which Federal agencies may not currently accept driver's licenses and identification cards are: Minnesota and American Samoa.

I hope this information is helpful. Let us know if you have any further questions.

Until announced otherwise, the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept valid driver's licenses and identification cards issued by all states. DHS plans to announce the schedule for any changes to air travel requirements by the end of the year, and will ensure that state governments and the traveling public are notified at least 120 days in advance of implementation.

Furthermore, New York has recently received an extension through October 10, 2016, meaning Federal agencies may accept New York driver's licenses and identification card for the duration of that extension.

I hope this information proves helpful.

Best Wishes,

DHS requires visitors to present government-issued identification for access to its facilities. For visitors presenting a state-issued driver's license or identification card, DHS may only accept such documents if they are issued by states that are REAL ID compliant. If the state that issued your license is listed as noncompliant, please bring an alternate form of government-issued photo ID – such as a passport or Federal employee, military, or veteran identification card to facilitate access.

To Whom This May Concern,

I'm an Associate in the Wish Granting Department at Make-A-Wish of Metro New York and Western New York. 60% of our wishes involve airline travel and we are trying to determine what will happen with the REAL ID requirements beginning in 2016 and how it will affect our traveling wish families.

Through online research, I understand that New York State is currently non-compliant. Beginning in January, will our wish families be able to board a domestic flight with a non-enhanced New York driver's license or New York State Identification Card? Will our traveling families who do not have a US passport, have to apply for an enhanced driver's license? And if they don't drive, will there be an enhanced state ID or will they need to apply for a passport?

I really appreciate any help and guidance that you can provide. Once I have this information, I would like to share it with the other chapters in New York State.

Sincerely,

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

If your cruise will be leaving the United States then you will need a passport.

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

Subject: REAL I.D.

To Whom It May Concern:

I have been reading extensive information online about the new REAL I.D. that will be required to board commercial airplanes next year in 2016. The sources of information are the official websites for the D.H.S. (Department of Homeland Security) and T.S.A. (Transportation Security Administration).

A few questions:

- 1.) What, exactly, is REAL I.D.? Is it some kind of special identification card containing personal information?

REAL ID is a coordinated effort by the states and the Federal Government to improve the reliability and accuracy of state-issued identification documents, which should inhibit terrorists' ability to evade detection by using fraudulent identification. REAL ID implements a 9/11 Commission recommendation urging the federal government to "set standards for the issuance of sources of identification, such as driver's licenses

- 2.) Is an Enhanced Driver's License the same thing as a REAL I.D.?

State-issued enhanced drivers licenses (EDLs) provide proof of identity and U.S. citizenship, are issued in a secure process, and include technology that makes travel easier. They provide travelers with a low-cost, convenient alternative for entering the United States from Canada, Mexico or the Caribbean through a land or sea port of entry, in addition to serving as a permit to drive.

- 3.) Can either an Enhanced Driver's License OR an Enhanced State I.D. Card (for persons who do not drive) be used to board airplanes in 2016 & beyond?

Yes.

Thank you in advance for your assistance.

Sincerely,

Subject: Real ID Requirements

I have read a number of articles but none has mentioned military identification.

From experience, many of these young lads and lasses do not have a driver's license or (if they ever even thought about it) a passport.

Are military personnel, under orders or on leave, going to be denied boarding an aircraft when all they have is a military ID card?

If your cruise will be leaving the United States then you will need a passport.

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

I'm confused by information regarding domestic travel. A recent news story said residents of Pennsylvania would need a current passport for boarding a domestic flight. However, when I looked for this information on your website, I believe Pennsylvania was listed as one of the states where a passport would not be required. I am considering going on vacation to Myrtle beach in June of 2016. Will I need a passport in addition to my Pennsylvania driver's license?

I recently read about the new Real ID Act. I live in the state of Louisiana so according to what I have read I will need another ID besides my Drivers License. I have went on the TSA website and seen what alternative ID's they do accept so I understand that. My question is when will this be in affect? The last thing I want to do is plan a trip to fly and not be able to board for not having the right identification. Thank you for any information you can give me.

Hey there,

I am on the website <http://www.dhs.gov/real-id-enforcement-brief> and I am trying to figure out which states this will be impacting. The layout of this doesn't quite make complete sense.

I see that NY, NH, LA, and MN are non-compliant (with NY and MN having the ability to upgrade licenses) which will impact them the most.

However of the remaining states, will there be any impact now or in the immediate future? I see the states with the (*) designation that they have an extension allowing Federal agencies to accept driver's licenses from these states, but is the extension slated to expire?

I am asking because I work with a nation-wide company in which we travel very heavily and this will impact several members of my team potentially, so I want them to be as educated on the situation as possible.

Your feedback and help will be greatly appreciated.

The REAL ID is not a way to track the holder. The implementation of drivers licenses is done at the state level and not administered by the federal government.

A REAL ID compliant license does not require a microchip in it.

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

We both do not have birth certificates but do have valid AZ and LA driver licenses and social security cards. The real ID act says that we can't fly commercially after January 1st without acquiring new id's. Is this still the case?

It looked like on your website that Phase 4 compliance was still not final.

Please help clarifying

Dear Mr./ Mrs.

It has come to my attention that a new regulation – the Real ID Act – will require individuals from certain US states to obtain a second form of ID in order to board domestic flights. I know the project has been divided into 4 phases and the last phase would be the one affecting federally regulated commercial aircrafts, but I'd like to know if at this point there a date for implementing phase 4? How does DHS plans on inform the public about these changes?

Any info you can provide is much appreciated.

Subject: Air Travel For Oklahoma Residents

Good morning,

Your email address was given to me by our state agency Support Services Division Director. I am contacting you in reference to an email sent out to all employees by our agency regarding the REAL ID Act passed in 2005. In the email, it says that after December 31st, 2015, our Oklahoma State Driver's License will not suffice as adequate identification upon entering a TSA checkpoint for a departure flight. Is this correct? If our OK state-issued driver's license will not be adequate identification after December 31st, 2015, what form of identification (other than a driver's license) will be needed so that we may access air travel without any delay? Quite often I am required to fly on government business, so I need to be sure that I have the proper credentials upon entering the terminal.

Thank you in advance for answering these questions.

Respectfully,

Hi. I work for the Tangipahoa Parish Clerk of Court in Louisiana. We have had many phone calls and walk in's regarding what documentation will be sufficient to fly on a commercial airline after January 1, 2016. "DHS said in a memo that people with non-compliant driver's licenses would be required to provide a 2nd piece of identification in addition to their driver's licenses to pass through Transportation Security Administration airport security checkpoints, starting no earlier than 2016. The agency listed passports as an acceptable alternative ID for driver's licenses. The problem is that many people don't have passports."

Will it in fact go into effect on January 1, 2016 for commercial air travel?

What secondary id will suffice?

We issue passports in our office and if this is something that will be required on Jan.1, 2016 we need to prepare. We have asked the passport agency and there were not aware of any deadline or requirements.

Thank you for your prompt response.

Your Oklahoma driver's license should be sufficient to gain entry to the military installation however you should contact the facility directly to see if the base has more stringent requirements for visitation.

A list of alternative identification cards can be found in Appendix B, pg. 17

Subject: Issues With Oklahoma Drivers License

To Whom It May Concern:

My wife and I are traveling from Oklahoma City to Anchorage Alaska during the month of November to visit our daughter and her family. Her husband is in the Air force, and we will be staying with them on the military base while we are there. We have heard on the news that the Oklahoma driver's license may not be an acceptable form of ID at military installations after October 10th. We do not have a current passport (both of our passports have recently expired) and it would be impossible to get new passports prior to our leaving. My questions are should we be concerned with being denied access to the military base by using our Oklahoma licenses?

Are there other forms of identification that we can use in the event that the drivers license is not acceptable?

My company's travel Agency, American Express Travel has informed me of the upcoming Real ID act in 2016. One of the notable items in this message to me was that If you have a Louisiana, Minnesota, New Hampshire or New York driver's license you'll need a second form of ID to get past TSA as soon as the start of 2016. Since I am a New York State resident and fly about 30 weeks per year, this is of concern to me. I informed American Express Travel that I did not possess a "typical" New York State Driver's License, I have an enhanced New York State Driver's (b)(6) 746 which expires on 5/27/2019. I also have a known Travelers Number issued by (b)(6) Their answer to me was, we direct you to contact the DHS office directly – to the email osiis@hq.dhs.gov This way we are 100% sure you will get accurate information. Do I need to carry two forms of ID, such as a passport or is the enhanced license acceptable? Thank you in advance!

Subject: Real ID Question

Hello –

I am the CFO for a manufacturing company based in Plymouth, MN and we have 25 sales employees that travel throughout the US for business purposes. Many of these individuals do not have passports and knowing that MN is a non-compliance state for the Real ID Act, I am hoping for some direction as to when the Act will go into effect.

Essentially, if our sales people cannot travel in MN come Jan. 1 2016 without a passport, I need to encourage them to get one soon given the lead time. I also need to establish a policy for reimbursement if that is the case.

Please let me know when the policy of enhanced drivers licenses and/or passports will go into effect for not only MN, but all of the non-compliant states as our sales people may travel to these areas.

Thank you
Peter

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

My family and I will be flying out of Tulsa on December 29, 2015 and not returning to Oklahoma until Jan. 4 2016. Will we be able to come back?

What form of ID will the airports take if the Oklahoma Drivers Licenses is not an acceptable form of ID?

Hello,

I read the updates regarding proper identification for boarding commercial airlines and as a current NH resident I am unsure how to proceed. What alternatives are available/acceptable that will enable me to continue to fly. Additionally, I know this might be outside of your purview but do you know or do you know someone who might know if NH is taking any steps to remedy this situation.

Hello -

I want to make sure that I am clear on what your website stated regarding the change in NH state driver license and flying on a federal flight. I am traveling from Boston to Florida over Thanksgiving and I want to make sure that timeline falls before the Phase 4 implementation of the REAL ID enforcement .

Is this correct that I will be able to travel during that time with just a NH state drivers license since the dates fall well before the start of 2016. Please get back to me at your earliest convenience . Thank you .

Subject: REAL ID Act - State of Alaska

Hello,

We are looking into the REAL ID act that is due to go in effect sometime in 2016. We have a few questions.

1. As a State with an extension, do we know how long this "extension" will be?
2. Phase 4 of the REAL ID act says (Acceptable with 2nd form of ID). What type of ID is an acceptable as a 2nd ID?
3. Will enforcement occur at TSA or are the carriers enforcing upon check-in?
4. If a traveler is carrying an ID from a Non-compliant state (example, Minnesota) will they be denied boarding in a state that is compliant?

Thank you for your assistance.

Thank you for your reply. We are concerned about travelers in the near future. We have several travel agencies questioning how to advise Minnesota travelers and passengers and will need to provide an answer with more details regarding Minnesota specifically.

I understand that the licenses currently work, but that there is potential need for passengers to acquire a passport or another form of identification to travel domestic air travel within the upcoming months. Given the time it takes to apply and receive a passport or alternative form of identification, we need to begin preparing and informing our passengers as soon as possible. Is there any idea when the enforcement date will be set? When you say "at least until 2016," will there be a possibility of the current licenses working into 2016?

Regarding the enhanced drivers licenses (EDLs) in Minnesota, will these be okay for domestic air travel after the enforcement date? We need specific clarification here as well.

Any further information you have is greatly appreciated. Please call me at (b)(6) at your earliest convenience.

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

Your current licenses will work for domestic air travel.

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

You can find an acceptable list of ID's for airline travel from TSA here:

Subject: Real ID in Minnesota

Hello,

There are a few questions regarding the implementation of Real ID in Minnesota.

It is noted on the webpage that Enhanced Drivers Licenses (EDL) will be accepted but this only applies to domestic travel and passports will still be needed for international travel by air, correct?

If a passenger does not have an EDL, what are the acceptable IDs besides a passport in MN?

Phase 4 is to be enforced no sooner than January 1, 2016. Will enforcement begin immediately on 1/1/2016 or is there potential for a later date?

We have several passengers asking questions regarding this matter and given the time sensitivity, we would like to adequately prepare them for travel. I look forward to hearing from you as soon as possible.

Good afternoon,

I am a school teacher in Minnesota. I will be traveling, most likely by air, in late March/early April of 2017 with approximately 30 high school seniors. Some of these students will be adults (over 18) and some will be minors (under 18). We will, most likely, be traveling from Minnesota to California and back.

Here is my question. How will the REAL ID Travel Act affect us? Will I need to get all of my students to go and get a Minnesota Enhanced Driver's License? I really don't want to make them jump through the hoop and expense of getting a passport.

Please help.

Thanks

Subject: Urgent questions about REAL ID

Hi there, I have a question about the REAL ID law with regards to New Hampshire licenses,

It says on the DHS webpage that the state of New Hampshire's extension has expired, and thus enforcement begins January 19, 2015.

It also says on the DHS webpage:

"Each phase will begin with a 3-month period where agencies will provide notice to individuals attempting to use driver's licenses or identification cards from noncompliant states but still allow access."

If enforcement for NH began in January of this year, will the 3-month grace period beginning in 2016 still apply to fliers with NH licenses?

This is endlessly confusing for me, as I have been planning my trip to California for months and never imagined I would need a passport. Now I am not sure if I will even get my passport back in time for my flight!

Thanks,

Hello -

I want to make sure that I am clear on what your website stated regarding the change in NH state driver license and flying on a federal flight. I am traveling from Boston to Florida over Thanksgiving and I want to make sure that timeline falls before the Phase 4 implementation of the REAL ID enforcement .

Is this correct that I will be able to travel during that time with just a NH state drivers license since the dates fall well before the start of 2016. Please get back to me at your earliest convenience . Thank you .

acquire the new ID, and how much it will cost. Is there hopefully a 1-800 number that I can call to talk to an individual on a help desk?

Thanks... (b)(6)

I have an U.S. passport, but I do not want to run the risk of losing it during my frequent travels. How do I go about acquiring the REAL ID? Can you please be specific on where to go, who to contact, how long it will take to acquire the new ID, and how much it will cost. Is there hopefully a 1-800 number that I can call to talk to an individual on a help desk?

My question is whether I can use my Passport Card to board domestic flights after the final phase of the Real ID Act is implemented. My state of Alabama offers a Star ID Drivers License in lieu of the standard license, but I would not need to obtain that if the Passport Card will be accepted to board domestic flights.

We are from NY. My husband has a passport and I have an enhanced driver's license. I understand that we will both still be able to travel domestic flights when the Real ID fully takes effect. I really like the idea of REAL id, but the part I can't get an answer to is what is a REAL id. I want to just get a passport, but I can't find any way to replace my birth certificate. It was stolen a few years back. My dad was in the army and he and mom mother were stationed in Germany when I was born. I know it's not part of my original inquiry, but any idea on how to obtain another copy of my birth certificate? It says on it u.s citizen but New Mexico is about as helpful as a bank loan when your not broke.

Thank you,

Thank you very much for your speedy reply. So, if I am interpreting your response correctly, my NH driver's license will be valid for my trip to California in January? Thanks again.

Subject: Urgent questions about REAL ID

Hi there, I have a question about the REAL ID law with regards to New Hampshire licenses,

It says on the DHS webpage that the state of New Hampshire's extension has expired, and thus enforcement begins January 19, 2015.

It also says on the DHS webpage:

"Each phase will begin with a 3-month period where agencies will provide notice to individuals attempting to use driver's licenses or identification cards from noncompliant states but still allow access."

If enforcement for NH began in January of this year, will the 3-month grace period beginning in 2016 still apply to fliers with NH licenses?

This is endlessly confusing for me, as I have been planning my trip to California for months and never imagined I would need a passport. Now I am not sure if I will even get my passport back in time for my flight!

Thanks,

Thank you for your prompt response.

Since January 2016 is just about 3 months away, it seems sensible to push the official deadline later now, since it takes some time to secure a passport or other form of identification. I hope "ample advance notice" would exceed 3 months.

I can imagine with the social media postings about this currently that you are getting quite a few questions. I believe posting some clearer statement than is currently online would be useful to citizens.

Hello,

I've read some of your documents online about what states Drivers Licenses will serve as "real ID" for commercial airlines in 2016.

<http://www.dhs.gov/real-id-enforcement-brief> states "The date for implementing Phase 4 will be set after the evaluation has been complete; this phase will occur no sooner than 2016."

- Is January 1 2016 still the deadline?

To my knowledge, PA does not offer the enhanced licenses your documents seem to require. Pennsylvania is listed with an * - Has an extension, allowing Federal agencies to accept driver's licenses from these states.

- When does that extension expire?
- If I were to subscribe to TSA Pre✓* – which requires a birth certificate, would that be sufficient to ensure boarding commercial airlines in 2016 with a PA Driver's License?

Hello,

I am a resident of Minnesota and I understand that in order to fly after mid January I will need an enhanced license or passport. This isn't a problem as my husband and I have the Minnesota enhanced license. My question is, do my minor children need passports? Minnesota does not offer an enhanced ID card at this time, only a driver's license.

I couldn't quite figure it out on the homeland security website.

Subject: REAL ID Implementation

Hi,

I recently heard about the REAL ID act and have questions about how its implementation will affect people flying in 2016. My organization regularly flies people around the country and we need to know what to expect.

Starting on Jan 1, 2016, what can we expect for people flying domestically?

- • * Is it acceptable to show two forms of ID - i.e., a drivers license and a Utility Bill (Address), Voter Registration Card, Vehicle Registration Card/Title, Paycheck Stub with Name/Address, Cancelled Check or Bank Statement, Social Security Card, Birth Certificate, etc?
- • * If so, what combinations of ID are valid at airports?
- • * Can low-income people (people without enough disposable income to purchase or buy an "enhanced" drivers license or passport) obtain them for free or for reduced cost?
- • * How can one tell if their drivers license is a "Real ID"?
- • * What kind of documents do people who are not yet US citizens or are here on a visa show?
- • * What about undocumented people who are waiting on their DACA applications?
- • * How does the 3 month grace period work?

I'm sure I will have more questions, but the TSA website and FAQ is very unclear. Please let me know as soon as possible what we can expect with this law!

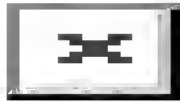

Many thanks,

My inquiry wasn't about the TSA – rather the general use of Tribal (American Indian) issued identification in lieu of state identification in instances where a Real ID is required:
For instance, if a member of the Navajo Nation (a federally recognized tribe) wanted to use an ID issued by the Navajo Nation vs. a Commonwealth of Virginia issued identification to enter a federal building, are there guidelines on that?

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

You will be able to travel with your passport from El Salvador.

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

You can find an acceptable list of ID's for airline travel from TSA here:

<http://www.tsa.gov/traveler-information/acceptable-ids>

If a child is younger than 18, they are not required to have ID to travel. They'll just need their boarding pass.

My inquiry wasn't about the TSA – rather the general use of Tribal (American Indian) issued identification in lieu of state identification in instances where a Real ID is required:
For instance, if a member of the Navajo Nation (a federally recognized tribe) wanted to use an ID issued by the Navajo Nation vs. a Commonwealth of Virginia issued identification to enter a federal building, are there guidelines on that?

Subject: Urgent questions about REAL ID

Hi there, I have a question about the REAL ID law with regards to New Hampshire licenses,

It says on the DHS webpage that the state of New Hampshire's extension has expired, and thus enforcement begins January 19, 2015.

It also says on the DHS webpage:

"Each phase will begin with a 3-month period where agencies will provide notice to individuals attempting to use driver's licenses or identification cards from noncompliant states but still allow access."

If enforcement for NH began in January of this year, will the 3-month grace period beginning in 2016 still apply to fliers with NH licenses?

This is endlessly confusing for me, as I have been planning my trip to California for months and never imagined I would need a passport. Now I am not sure if I will even get my passport back in time for my flight!

Thanks.

Will Oklahomans be able to board aircraft with only a valid Oklahoma driver's license beginning in January, 2016? We have a group of students traveling from Oklahoma to California for the Rose Bowl Parade in January, 2016 and we are hoping to know whether these kids will need passports in order to travel? If so, we will need time to pursue obtaining so appreciate any details you are willing to provide.

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

Your current drivers licenses will work for domestic air travel.

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

You can find an acceptable list of ID's for airline travel from TSA here:

<http://www.tsa.gov/traveler-information/acceptable-ids>

If a child is younger than 18, they are not required to have ID to travel. They'll just need their boarding pass.

Can a Passport Card be used as your identity to board an airplane under the new security rules going into effect in 2016? It does not appear that my current New York State Driver's license meets the "Real ID" standards, but I am wondering if I need to apply for my state's enhanced driver's license if I have a valid passport card.

Hi there, I have a question about the REAL ID law with regards to New Hampshire licenses,

It says on the DHS webpage that the state of New Hampshire's extension has expired, and thus enforcement begins January 19, 2015.

It also says on the DHS webpage:

"Each phase will begin with a 3-month period where agencies will provide notice to individuals attempting to use driver's licenses or identification cards from noncompliant states but still allow access."

If enforcement for NH began in January of this year, will the 3-month grace period beginning in 2016 still apply to fliers with NH licenses?

This is endlessly confusing for me, as I have been planning my trip to California for months and never imagined I would need a passport. Now I am not sure if I will even get my passport back in time for my flight!

Thanks,

Your question about people coming to the US is hard to provide an answer to because it's vagueness. Dependent upon the situation the individual traveling to the US may dictate certain documentation necessary for the travel such as passports and visas.

Your current identification card will work for domestic air travel.

Pennsylvania currently has an extension to the REAL ID compliance and will be up for renewal Oct. 10, 2015. After a determination has been made on the application for a further extension information regarding the status of compliance will be made. If the state were not to receive an extension ample notification will be made.

Hi,

I recently heard about the REAL ID act and have questions about how its implementation will affect people flying in 2016. My organization regularly flies people around the country and we need to know what to expect.

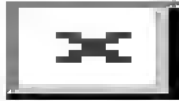

Starting on Jan 1, 2016, what can we expect for people flying domestically?

- • * Is it acceptable to show two forms of ID - i.e., a drivers license and a Utility Bill (Address), Voter Registration Card, Vehicle Registration Card/Title, Paycheck Stub with Name/Address, Cancelled Check or Bank Statement, Social Security Card, Birth Certificate, etc?
- • * If so, what combinations of ID are valid at airports?
- • * Can low-income people (people without enough disposable income to purchase or buy an "enhanced" drivers license or passport) obtain them for free or for reduced cost?
- • * How can one tell if their drivers license is a "Real ID"?
- • * What kind of documents do people who are not yet US citizens or are here on a visa show?
- • * What about undocumented people who are waiting on their DACA applications?
- • * How does the 3 month grace period work?

I'm sure I will have more questions, but the TSA website and FAQ is very unclear. Please let me know as soon as possible what we can expect with this law!

Many thanks,

Hello!

Thanks for getting back to me, the only question that may (and will) arise is the wording "at least until 2016". This group will be traveling in 2016 (end of January). Are we safe to say that nothing will change prior to that and that all is status quo for this large group? We have approx. 10,000 travelers to address.

Please confirm that ample time means that this will probably occur later in 2016?

Thanks!

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

Current drivers licenses will work for domestic air travel.

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

Do we have any confirmed update as to what the "beginning in 2016" actually means for our travelers?

Please update your website regarding REAL IDs.

As a resident of one of the state's listed as non-compliant, I need a better answer from your website than "no sooner than 2016."

Does that mean January 1? Does that mean 2017?

Many people are already planning travel for 2016.

If we are to be unfairly forced to pay for unnecessary passports for domestic air travel, the effective date needs to be clearly posted.

Subject: Real ID Act

Hi. I work for the Tangipahoa Parish Clerk of Court in Louisiana. We have had many phone calls and walk in's regarding what documentation will be sufficient to fly on a commercial airline after January 1, 2016. "DHS said in a memo that people with non-compliant driver's licenses would be required to provide a 2nd piece of identification in addition to their driver's licenses to pass through Transportation Security Administration airport security checkpoints, starting no earlier than 2016. The agency listed passports as an acceptable alternative ID for driver's licenses. The problem is that many people don't have passports.”

Will it in fact go into effect on January 1, 2016 for commercial air travel?

What secondary id will suffice?

We issue passports in our office and if this is something that will be required on Jan.1, 2016 we need to prepare. We have asked the passport agency and there were not aware of any deadline or requirements.

Thank you for your prompt response.

Hello,

I am a high school teacher in NH (a non compliant REAL ID state) and I am planning a trip for students to Nashville Tennessee next April. I am trying to figure out if my students will need passports to travel or not. Can you provide me with some insight and answer the following questions?

1. Will students under 18 need to show ID if they are traveling with an adult?
2. If so, does that need to be a passport (as our NH drivers licenses are non-compliant)?
3. Adults over 18, will we need a passport to travel by plane domestically? Or at least in Tennessee to fly back to New Hampshire?

Thanks for your help... I have a bunch of anxious parents.

We have branches in Oklahoma and Texas and their compliance extension will expire October 10, 2015. However, I interpret the Real ID rule to only effect the Official Purpose(s) and not account opening. Can you advise on how Real ID noncompliance can effect opening bank accounts/loans? As an FDIC insured bank we could be considered a Federal Agency.

If I need to reach out to the FDIC, please let me know. Thank you.

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

Your current drivers licenses will work for domestic air travel.

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

You can find an acceptable list of ID's for airline travel from TSA here:

<http://www.tsa.gov/traveler-information/acceptable-ids>

If your child is younger than 18, they are not required to have ID to travel. They'll just need their boarding pass.

Greetings!

We are conducting a large travel group that will be from all states and have been asked about the REAL ID "beginning in 2016". The group will be traveling in January, 2016 and are asking if they must obtain a new Driver License or Passport prior.

Do we have any confirmed update as to what the "beginning in 2016" actually means for our travelers?

Warm regards,

Thank you for your reply. We are concerned about travelers in the near future. We have several travel agencies questioning how to advise Minnesota travelers and passengers and will need to provide an answer with more details regarding Minnesota specifically.

I understand that the licenses currently work, but that there is potential need for passengers to acquire a passport or another form of identification to travel domestic air travel within the upcoming months. Given the time it takes to apply and receive a passport or alternative form of identification, we need to begin preparing and informing our passengers as soon as possible. Is there any idea when the enforcement date will be set? When you say "at least until 2016," will there be a possibility of the current licenses working into 2016?

Regarding the enhanced drivers licenses (EDLs) in Minnesota, will these be okay for domestic air travel after the enforcement date? We need specific clarification here as well.

Any further information you have is greatly appreciated. Please call me at (b)(6) at your earliest convenience.

Hello,

There are a few questions regarding the implementation of Real ID in Minnesota.

It is noted on the webpage that Enhanced Drivers Licenses (EDL) will be accepted but this only applies to domestic travel and passports will still be needed for international travel by air, correct?

If a passenger does not have an EDL, what are the acceptable IDs besides a passport in MN?

Phase 4 is to be enforced no sooner than January 1, 2016. Will enforcement begin immediately on 1/1/2016 or is there potential for a later date?

We have several passengers asking questions regarding this matter and given the time sensitivity, we would like to adequately prepare them for travel. I look forward to hearing from you as soon as possible.

Subject: REAL ID inquiry

Good morning.

I am reviewing the READ ID program on your page. It says that several states are still not in complete compliance to the program; one being South Carolina. I currently live in South Carolina.

Primarily the license here does not meet the standards of DHS. Other forms of ID would be considered. However there are some of us who don't have a passport due to restrictions of obtaining one. When I was unemployed, I accrued child support arrearages nearing $10,000. I am currently paying that down with each paycheck. However I cannot get a passport because if owe just $1 in arrears, I am disqualified. While I understand why this rule is in effect, it penalizes me unfairly as I'm paying it off regularly. With this new REAL ID hurdle, its now preventing me from boarding domestic flights! Im being treated as a criminal thru no fault of my own.

So what can I do, being a citizen of South Carolina and needing to travel domestically, not only for work but to see my kids! Please provide me with some specific help that I can take in order to comply with your new rule.

Thanks!

I am a citizen of New Hampshire, and have a state issued Drivers license that I use for identification when I fly domestically. My family and I will be traveling over the holidays, and I am concerned we will not be able to get back after the 1st of the year with our NH IDs. Good morning.

I am reviewing the READ ID program on your page. It says that several states are still not in complete compliance to the program; one being South Carolina. I currently live in South Carolina. Primarily the license here does not meet the standards of DHS. Other forms of ID would be considered. However there are some of us who don't have a passport due to restrictions of obtaining one. When I was unemployed, I accrued child support arrearages nearing $10,000. I am currently paying that down with each paycheck. However I cannot get a passport because if owe just $1 in arrears, I am disqualified. While I understand why this rule is in effect, it penalizes me unfairly as I'm paying it off regularly. With this new REAL ID hurdle, its now preventing me from boarding domestic flights! Im being treated as a criminal thru no fault of my own.

So what can I do, being a citizen of South Carolina and needing to travel domestically, not only for work but to see my kids! Please provide me with some specific help that I can take in order to comply with your new rule.

Thanks!

Thank you for your reply. We are concerned about travelers in the near future. We have several travel agencies questioning how to advise Minnesota travelers and passengers and will need to provide an answer with more details regarding Minnesota specifically.

I understand that the licenses currently work, but that there is potential need for passengers to acquire a passport or another form of identification to travel domestic air travel within the upcoming months. Given the time it takes to apply and receive a passport or alternative form of identification, we need to begin preparing and informing our passengers as soon as possible. Is there any idea when the enforcement date will be set? When you say "at least until 2016," will there be a possibility of the current licenses working into 2016?

Regarding the enhanced drivers licenses (EDLs) in Minnesota, will these be okay for domestic air travel after the enforcement date? We need specific clarification here as well.

Any further information you have is greatly appreciated. Please call me at (b)(6) at your earliest convenience.

Subject: Real ID in Minnesota

Hello,

There are a few questions regarding the implementation of Real ID in Minnesota.

It is noted on the webpage that Enhanced Drivers Licenses (EDL) will be accepted but this only applies to domestic travel and passports will still be needed for international travel by air, correct?

If a passenger does not have an EDL, what are the acceptable IDs besides a passport in MN?

Phase 4 is to be enforced no sooner than January 1, 2016. Will enforcement begin immediately on 1/1/2016 or is there potential for a later date?

We have several passengers asking questions regarding this matter and given the time sensitivity, we would like to adequately prepare them for travel. I look forward to hearing from you as soon as possible.

Good morning,

I have recently read about the changes to identification procedures in regards to air travel. As license holders in Minnesota, we are concerned for the upcoming Christmas break for our daughter. She will be scheduling a flight home from college in New York for mid-December and returning to college mid-January. She does not have a passport. Will these changes take effect during this period? Would she be able to use her college id as a second form of identification? We can certainly get a passport for her over the summer; we just want to make sure she does not have any travel issues over Christmas, as flying is her only way home. Thank you for your help.

Dear Sir or Madam,

My elderly mother will be flying from Michigan to Louisiana this November (2015) to spend the winter. She has a regular Michigan driver's license. She will likely not fly back to Michigan until April of 2016.

Will her current driver's license allow her to board the plane in April 2016 or does she need to get an enhanced Michigan driver's license before she leaves?

Please let me know. Thanks for your help,

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

Your current drivers licenses will work for domestic air travel.

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

You used double-negative language on your webpage when mentioning use of a passport. You did not clearly state whether a US passport can be used instead of a Real ID card at TSA airport checkpoints.

Please clarify this.

Hello, my name is (b)(6) and my family and I will be traveling from New Hampshire to Florida in January 2015. We recently learned that our New Hampshire state IDs may not be accepted by TSA when we arrive at the airport. I just wanted to verify that if we got passport cards that we would be alright to fly. We also have two children traveling with us, they will be 2 and 7 years old. Will they also require passports?

Hello,

My name is (b)(6) and I'm a travel agent, I'm trying to find out if in fact the states of NH, LA, MN, and NY come January 1, 2016 if their driver's license will be accepted by TSA for boarding a flight. I have read through everything on your DHS website and can't seem to find out for sure if this is the case. Can you please direct me to where I might read this and or are you able to just answer the question of if they will still accept the ID or not.

Thank you in advance for your assistance with this, I look forward to your response. If you need to contact me further please feel free to do so.

Subject: REAL ID Question

Hello,

We have recently been made aware of the rules involving airline travel with passengers from the four states and American Samoa that are not compliant with the REAL ID system, requiring anyone using a driver's license from those states to provide a second form of ID when traveling. Our question is how that relates to the states that are in compliance, but the passenger does not currently possess a REAL ID. When this officially goes into effect, will they also need a second form of ID if using a state-issued driver's license or identification card when the primary form is not a REAL ID?

Thank you for your assistance.

I have read the DHS website on Real ID Enforcement with the list of states and I am still confused. The website says Arizona has an extension but I am not sure what that means. Will my current Arizona drivers license allow me to fly within the United States in 2016? Arizona's AZDOT website is also confusing, only indicating some type of optional Real ID compliant license will be available in April 2016. I have talked to a lot of people and there is a lot of confusion about Real ID.

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

Your current drivers licenses will work for domestic air travel.

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

You can find an acceptable list of ID's for airline travel from TSA here:
<http://www.tsa.gov/traveler-information/acceptable-ids>

You can find the latest information and requirements regarding the REAL ID program at the link below:

Also, your website says, "For more information on Facility Security Level, please see the Interagency Security Committee standard, Section Four." Are the Facility Security Levels (I, II, III, and IV) referenced in this document consistent with the below highlighted Facility Security Levels? It doesn't make sense that a Facility Security Level IV or V (the highest risk in the hyperlinked document) would not have Real ID Act imposed restrictions until later in the process than those facilities with less risk.

Good Evening,

Our State EMA office sent out that we were no longer going to be able to use State of Maine ID's to access Federal Facilities because we were not a compliant Real ID state.

According to your website it would appear that we have been granted an extension for this access. I was hoping you could shed some light on this as it has created some confusion. Is our extension due to expire after October 10, 2015 and the we will no longer be compliant?

Any information that you could provide would be greatly appreciated. Please feel free to contact me at the numbers below if need be. Thank you for your assistance.

Here is the abstract info that we received:

Subject: New CDP Security measures/REAL ID

Gaad marning,

I have been infarmed today that CDP will be implementing security access to the facility with REAL ID enhanced drivers' licenses effective October 10, 2015.

Unfartunately Maine is nat a REAL ID compliant State and your driver's license will na langer be able ta be used ta enter Federal facilities ar damestic aircraft. A US Passpart is an acceptable substitute but nat everyane has ane.

Accordingly, after that date, all Maine student applicants will be pre security screened before appraval which may result in same students being denied access ta attend CDP and/or result in a delay in yau getting into the requested class. Successfully screened applicants will then be placed in a Natianal database using yaur FEMA Student ID number which should streamline future applications.

I assume this will also be implemented at all Federal training praviders including EMI and the National Fire Academy.

I would encourage everyone to obtain a US Passport if you intend to travel on commercial aircraft.

We will do our best to work with CDP and others to get you into the classes if you are denied access.

Hello,

We have recently been made aware of the rules involving airline travel with passengers from the four states and American Samoa that are not compliant with the REAL ID system, requiring anyone using a driver's license from those states to provide a second form of ID when traveling. Our question is how that relates to the states that are in compliance, but the passenger does not currently possess a REAL ID. When this officially goes into effect, will they also need a second form of ID if using a state-issued driver's license or identification card when the primary form is not a REAL ID?

Good day,

Regarding the following that has been released as of late:

"Pursuant to REAL ID regulations, beginning December 1, 2014, federal agencies may not accept State-issued driver's licenses or identification cards for official purposes from individuals born after December 1, 1964, unless the license or card is REAL ID-compliant and was issued by a compliant State as determined by DHS. Also, beginning December 1, 2017, federal agencies may not accept driver's licenses or identification cards for official purposes from any individual unless the card is REAL ID-compliant and was issued by a compliant State as determined by DHS. This final rule changes both document enrollment dates to October 1, 2020. Nothing in this rule affects the prohibition against federal agencies accepting for official purposes licenses and identification cards issued by noncompliant States, pursuant to the REAL ID Act and in accordance to the phased enforcement schedule."

1. I am trying to get clarification as to why this targets individuals born after December 1, 1964.
2. Why does this not affect individuals born prior to December 1, 1964?
3. Will this affect those individuals born prior to December 1, 1964?
4. If so, when will they need to be compliant?
5. What does this statement mean, "This final rule changes both document enrollment dates to October 1, 2020"?

Thank you in advance for your cooperation with helping clarify these questions.

Have a great day!

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

Currently Oklahoma has an extension until Oct. 10, 2015. At that time the state will have to renew its extension status.

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

Thank you for your reply. We are concerned about travelers in the near future. We have several travel agencies questioning how to advise Minnesota travelers and passengers and will need to provide an answer with more details regarding Minnesota specifically.

I understand that the licenses currently work, but that there is potential need for passengers to acquire a passport or another form of identification to travel domestic air travel within the upcoming months. Given the time it takes to apply and receive a passport or alternative form of identification, we need to begin preparing and informing our passengers as soon as possible. Is there any idea when the enforcement date will be set? When you say "at least until 2016," will there be a possibility of the current licenses working into 2016?

Regarding the enhanced drivers licenses (EDLs) in Minnesota, will these be okay for domestic air travel after the enforcement date? We need specific clarification here as well.

Any further information you have is greatly appreciated. Please call me at 651-900-8476 at your earliest convenience.

Hello,

There are a few questions regarding the implementation of Real ID in Minnesota.

It is noted on the webpage that Enhanced Drivers Licenses (EDL) will be accepted but this only applies to domestic travel and passports will still be needed for international travel by air, correct?

If a passenger does not have an EDL, what are the acceptable IDs besides a passport in MN?

Phase 4 is to be enforced no sooner than January 1, 2016. Will enforcement begin immediately on 1/1/2016 or is there potential for a later date?

We have several passengers asking questions regarding this matter and given the time sensitivity, we would like to adequately prepare them for travel. I look forward to hearing from you as soon as possible.

The proposals are being discussed currently. Because there will be ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change there is the possibility to utilize an alternate id on the TSA approved list as well. The notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft and will be a significant amount of time to allow the general population to comply.

Hi -

I am trying to advise clients correctly but not cause any unnecessary panic. I am trying to understand the terminology in this bulletin:

Does

Aircraft (Acceptable with 2nd form of ID)

No sooner than 2016

mean that Louisiana, Minnesota, New Hampshire, and New York residents will all now need passports (since their DL is not valid) as of January 1, 2016 or does it mean you will enforce this no sooner than some time in 2016

Thank you for clarifying this for me

Dear Sir or Madam,

I am writing regarding Louisiana's request for an extension under the REAL ID Act with the US Department of Homeland Security. I am the Louisiana Public Affairs Specialist for AAA, a leading advocate for travelers across the country and we want to provide our members with the most current, updated information possible concerning identification requirements for flying commercial airlines beginning in 2016.

Right now, we are suggesting that Louisiana air travelers plan on providing two forms of government-issued photo IDs, such as a Louisiana driver's license and passport or any other similar combination. However, if the state is granted an extension, will current, valid driver's licenses issued prior to the enhancements (March 2015) be accepted by TSA officials at airports?

Thank you in advance for your prompt response.

I am wondering about the status of Real-id and when TSA will stop accepting driver's licenses from non-compliant states when boarding aircrat. I live in Minnesota and I know that it's a non-compliant state. We plan on traveling in January 2016 and need to know if our driver's licenses will still be accepted. We do not have passports.

Thanks

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

Your cousin should have a passport from their home country and this will be sufficient for air travel.

You can find an acceptable list of ID's for airline travel from TSA here:

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

We have a young lady from New York coming for a visit in December 2015, who will be going back to New York in January 2016. Will she be required to have a picture ID in 2016 in order to board the plane to go back home? She does not have a driver's license since she doesn't drive (she lives in the Bronx, so she doesn't need to drive). She does not have a passport either.

Subject: Real ID in Minnesota

Hello,

There are a few questions regarding the implementation of Real ID in Minnesota.

It is noted on the webpage that Enhanced Drivers Licenses (EDL) will be accepted but this only applies to domestic travel and passports will still be needed for international travel by air, correct?

If a passenger does not have an EDL, what are the acceptable IDs besides a passport in MN?

Phase 4 is to be enforced no sooner than January 1, 2016. Will enforcement begin immediately on 1/1/2016 or is there potential for a later date?

We have several passengers asking questions regarding this matter and given the time sensitivity, we would like to adequately prepare them for travel. I look forward to hearing from you as soon as possible.

Subject: REAL ID Act 2005 question

We have a large amount of employees that travel for work and hold New York licenses. Some have Enhanced, some have Passports, but most do not.

In reading on the Homeland Security site, it states that : "Federal Officials may continue to accept Enhanced Drivers licenses from these states" (NY being one of these states)
How I read this, is that it is not a definite that they will accept the enhanced license as being compliant?

Can you answer whether or not yes they will accept the enhanced license in 2016? Or they may change it and require a different ID such as a passport to fly.

Thank you for your help

Subject: Travel identification question

Good morning.

Some of our staff have been hearing that regular NY State drivers licenses may not be an acceptable form of ID for travelling via the airlines beginning in 2016, that they will be required to have a NY State

Enhanced Driver's License in order to travel. My understanding is that NY State is not compliant in areas for the DHS to accept the regular drivers license.

Can you please offer some advice on this?

Hello,

I would like to know starting January 2016 when Boarding a federally regulated commercial aircraft using a Minnesota Driver's License or Minnesota state issued ID (because MN is currently a noncompliant state) what is an acceptable second form of ID?

Please email me a list of acceptable secondary documents.

Thank you very much

Phase 4: Boarding federally regulated commercial aircraft. A driver's license or identification card from a noncompliant state may only be used in conjunction with an acceptable second form of ID for boarding federally regulated commercial aircraft.

Priority:	Normal
Type:	Note

- to clarify for our readers, the Real ID Act was passed in 2005, and enforcement began in 2013, with the first of four phases. is that correct?

The phased enforcement schedule was announced in December 2013.

The first enforcement phase began April 21, 2014 (following a 3-month notification period that began January 20, 2014).

- when do you anticipate the evaluation noted on the DHS "Real ID In Brief" webpage to conclude?

Finalized by the end of the year.

- when do you anticipate Phase 4 will officially be enforced (extensions excluded), as it pertains to boarding commercial aircraft?

Announced by the end of the year.

- i see from the DHS "Real ID In Brief" webpage, that 18 states/territories are currently awaiting approval on an extension to continue use of their current drivers licenses when boarding commercial aircraft. am i correct that this extension would likely only be through Jan. 10? what happens if they are denied the extension?

There are 33 noncompliant states/territories. So far 13 have received extensions through October 10, 2016. 20 have not (including Minnesota and American Samoa that did not have an extension during the prior round). Some -- but not all -- of these states have recently submitted information for consideration and are being reviewed.

For states with an extension that expired on October 10, 2015 and do not receive a new extension: Starting January 10, 2015, Federal agencies are prohibited from accepting driver's licenses and identification cards issued by these states in accordance with the phased enforcement schedule (currently, accessing almost all Federal facilities and entering nuclear power plants).

- am i correct that New Hampshire is the only state with an extension through June 1, 2016? if so, why is that?

Yes. It was determined that New Hampshire did not provide sufficient justification to receive an extension for the full term. If New Hampshire demonstrates sufficient progress by June 1, 2016, they may receive a further extension.

- how long have non-compliant states known about the roll out of Phase 4 as it pertains to boarding commercial aircraft?

Since 2005 when the REAL ID Act was enacted.

The construct of a "Phase 4" was part of the phased enforcement schedule released in December 2013.

- why do you think some states have not changed their driver's license requirements in order to comply with the Act?

[not appropriate for us to speculate on the record. I would be happy to answer on background: combination of denial, cost, and bad information.]

- can you please confirm which ID's are acceptable as a second form of identification, to be used by those from states with non-compliant drivers' licenses?

By the end of the year, DHS will announce the timing and nature of enforcement for boarding commercial aircraft, including information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

- is the 3-month forgiveness period mentioned in your latest press release supposed to occur prior to the expiration of a state's extension period, or after the extension period expires?

The grace period covers three months following the expiration of the extension (i.e., between October 10, 2015 and January 10, 2016). Its purpose is to provide states with time to provide additional information or take corrective action that might demonstrate sufficient justification to allow DHS to grant an extension. That way Federal agencies have a stable list of states for enforcement.

Best Wishes,

(b)(6)

Director, Office of State-Issue Identification Support

DHS requires visitors to present government-issued identification for access to its facilities. For visitors presenting a state-issued driver's license or identification card, DHS may only accept such documents if they are issued by states that are REAL ID compliant. If the state that issued your license is listed as noncompliant, please bring an alternate form of government-issued photo ID – such as a passport or Federal employee, military, or veteran identification card to facilitate access.

Hello,

I was wondering if you have more information on the REAL ID Act in regards to Phase 4. It is my understanding that New York State has not done what it needs to in order to have our driver's licenses compliant with the REAL ID Act, and therefore drivers in NY will need to purchase an enhanced license (or use another form of accepted identification when traveling).

However, the only information I can find regarding when this will go into effect is "no sooner than 2016" or "beginning in 2016."

Could you please tell me if there is an actual date that this goes into effect?

I am looking for clarification regarding the phase 4 rollout of the REAL ID act.

My family is traveling from Buffalo to Ft Lauderdale by air in February to board a cruise ship.

We just got our US Passport eards. We have NY drivers licenses but they are NOT enhanced. Are we able to use those with our passport eards to board or will we need to get EDL's from NY first?

Thank you for your time.

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

Your current licenses will work for domestic air travel.

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

You can find an acceptable list of ID's for airline travel from TSA here:

Your website states:

- Phase 4: Boarding federally regulated commercial aircraft. A driver's license or identification card from a noncompliant state may only be used in conjunction with an acceptable second form of ID for boarding federally regulated commercial aircraft.

I'm having difficulty finding a list of acceptable second forms of ID. Can you tell me what they are?

I see that you can still use your NYS Driver's license in 2016 as long as you have an acceptable 2nd form of ID. I cannot seem to find a list of what the acceptable 2nd forms are.

Could you please supply me with that.

Hello,

I was wondering if you have more information on the REAL ID Act in regards to Phase 4. It is my understanding that New York State has not done what it needs to in order to have our driver's licenses compliant with the REAL ID Act, and therefore drivers in NY will need to purchase an enhanced license (or use another form of accepted identification when traveling).

However, the only information I can find regarding when this will go into effect is "no sooner than 2016" or "beginning in 2016."

Could you please tell me if there is an actual date that this goes into effect?

Thank you,

To Whom it may Concern

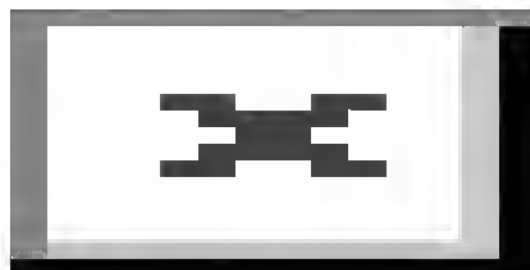

We have seen driver licenses from some states that are now compliant. But in some cases people receiving driver licenses are not bringing in sufficient documentation for the state to verify identity. In this case they are marking the driver license with the statement "NOT FOR FEDERAL OFFICIAL USE."

What do we do in this case? Log would tell me that we do not accept this driver license and would therefore require to use some sort of other form of ID that is acceptable such as a passport.

Do we count this as receiving a noncompliant credential and report the count to DHS at the end of the month along with the count of other noncompliant credentials? It will look like we counted a credential from a compliant state unless there is something that we are supposed to do in addition to the count.

Even if the state is now requiring everyone to bring the appropriate documentation now, there will be many driver licenses in use with this message on it so the problem has not gone away.

If we know what states are issuing compliant driver licenses that may not been identity proofed we can add a step to our visitor management software that will require the user to attest to whether or not the message "NOT FOR FEDERAL OFFICIAL USE" was present.

Any guidance will be very helpful.

Yours truly,

For tourist visits to Canada of less than 180 days, U.S. citizens do not need visas. Other types of travel (e.g., to work, study, or immigrate) generally do require visas. For complete information on visa categories and requirements, consult the Citizenship and Immigration Canada \(CIC\) website.

Anyone with a criminal record (including misdemeanors or alcohol-related driving offenses) may not be able to enter Canada without first obtaining an approval for rehabilitation well in advance of any planned travel. To determine whether you may be inadmissible and how to overcome this finding, please refer to the CIC website.

Entry into Canada is solely determined by Canada Border Services Agency (CBSA) officials in accordance with Canadian law. Please see the CBSA's website for full details.

Travel Documents: Both the U.S. and Canadian governments urge frequent travelers to join the NEXUS trusted traveler program. NEXUS members receive a special travel card that allows expedited border crossings for both private and commercial travelers through both U.S. and Canadian border controls.

Entry into Canada: Canadian law requires that all persons entering Canada carry both proof of citizenship and proof of identity. A valid U.S. passport, passport card, or NEXUS card satisfies these requirements for U.S. citizens.

You will need to check with the Florida DMV to inquire about their requirements for a ID.

That is outside the purview of this office.

If you have further questions regarding the REAL ID program please let us know.

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

The acceptance of a TWIC is governed by the facility itself and may not be an accepted form of ID for entry into a facility.

Please check with the facility prior to attempting to gain access to see if the TWIC is an acceptable form of ID for entry.

Thanks but I still don't understand.

WV issues what they refer to as an "enhance Federal ID" driver's license; designated by a golden star in the upper right corner.

Will I be able to re-enter the US from Montreal upon presentation of that WV driver's license?

Thanks for your patience and response.

A REAL ID compliant card may not be used in the place of a passport however if your state issues Enhanced Drivers Licenses, mostly northern border states with Canada, that is the only form that may be utilized in place of a passport.

Mr (b)(6)

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

You can find an acceptable list of ID's for airline travel from TSA here:

Mr. (b)(6)

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

REAL ID is a coordinated effort by the states and the Federal Government to improve the reliability and accuracy of state-issued identification documents, which should inhibit terrorists' ability to evade detection by using fraudulent identification. REAL ID implements a 9/11 Commission recommendation urging the federal government to "set standards for the issuance of sources of identification, such as driver's licenses."

I'm putting together a story for the Santa Fe Reporter here in New Mexico, and was curious what are some of the requirements to obtaining a Real ID Act complaint license?

What will I need? Original birth certificate and social security card? Or merely a copy? Any other forms of identification that I should make sure readers know about?

The Missouri House of Representatives is planning a House hearing to discuss compliance with the Real ID act. Rep. Elijah Haahr is chair of the Emerging Issues committee. The hearing is planned for Wednesday January 13th at approximately Noon. It is our desire to contact someone at DHS to appear at this hearing to help with information. Can you please provide me with contact information for someone who might be able to attend? I have attached the official Hearing Notice.

Subject: Individual / Point of Contact for REAL ID Questions
Importance: High

Good morning,

I am trying to identify a point of contact for questions pertaining to the January 10th deadline for state identifications / drivers licenses as it pertains to REAL ID. I believe this is the appropriate office, and would very much appreciate your assistance in identifying a person that industry can speak to briefly over the phone today or tomorrow, given the proximity to the January 10th date.

Specifically, the individual who has questions is (b)(6) with Venable, LLC, a firm that (among other things) provides support to businesses looking to or who currently hold contracts with the federal government.

If you could please also confirm receipt of this e-mail, that would be appreciated, as it is referenced in a DHSCconnect page that does not appear to have been updated since April 2011.

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

Unfortunately the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) does not have the authority to direct the State of Kansas to modify their procedures. DHS has established minimum standards for the issuance of driver's licenses and identification cards as part of the REAL ID Act, how a state implements those standards is up to them.

It is a requirement that applicants must show a connection between the name on their proof of identity and date of birth document and the name they are currently using. Apparently the State of Kansas was not satisfied with the documents you presented. It is our suggestion that you contact the Kansas DMV to determine if they have an alternative procedure for individuals in your situation.

If you have further questions regarding the REAL ID program please let us know.

I have a question on the Real ID Act:

I have and use two last names because of my Hispanic background. My U.S. passport has the two last names. I only use one last name on my Texas driver's license and have used it since it was issued more than 30 years ago.

I just moved to Kansas and they will not issue me a driver's license with one last name like in Texas. I was told it due to the Real ID Act. I was told my driver's license name has to match the same as in my U.S. passport.

I appreciate your assistance.

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

You have several options to choose from regarding your trip. As you mentioned, a U.S. Passport is an option but also Minnesota offers an Enhanced Driver's License. More information can be found at this MN DMV link here: <https://dps.mn.gov/divisions/dvs/Pages/drivers-license-information.aspx>

While we have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

You can find an acceptable list of ID's for airline travel from TSA here:

Subject: Minnesota Drivers License

Hi-

I plan to travel in March of 2016, I know that Minnesota currently wouldn't meet the TSA/DHS requirements on our regular drivers license - our state legislature has fought against these TSA/DHS requirements that the 9/11 Commission came up with years ago. My question is that it says on your web page that the drivers license implementation wouldn't happen any earlier than 2016, but it doesn't give a specific date, are there any updates? Any recommendations for me so that I don't run into trouble with TSA/DHS on my domestic flight in March of 2016? I know I could get a passport, but I have no need for one & would prefer not to spend the money. I look forward to your response. Thanks (b)(6) Sent from my iPad

If you wish to file a complaint with CRCL, please download this fillable complaint form (PDF, 7 pages - 212 KB) and e-mail, fax, or mail the completed form back to CRCL; or provide a detailed written description of the pertinent events. (Please note that e-mailing the completed form to CRCLCompliance@hq.dhs.gov is the fastest way to reach CRCL.)

- Contact information. Full name; date of birth; alien registration number, if applicable; phone number; mailing address; and e-mail address, if available.
- A written description of the specific circumstances. This should include date, time and location; name(s) and contact information of any witness(es); and name(s), job title, and agency or component of the individual(s) alleged to have committed the violation, if available. Please be as specific as possible in describing the circumstances surrounding your complaint.
- Relevant documents. Copies of any paperwork related to the complaint or its circumstances.
- A summary of other steps taken, if any, to resolve this complaint. For example, steps could include communications with a Department component agency regarding your complaint, or letters written to the DHS Office of Inspector General.
- Complaints filed on behalf of a third party. If you are writing on behalf of someone else and wish to receive information which relates to them or their complaint, you must provide express written consent from that individual authorizing the Department to share information with you about the complaint. Thank you for your non-answer. This is discrimination. It is DHS that is causing the discrimination. It just cost me over $100 to order all the documents needed to prove the chain for my name. I had all of these documents until my ex-husband threw me down a flight of stairs. After being released from the hospital my best friend came to get me. I had an hour and a half to grab all that I could to start over in a new life before my ex was released from jail. At the time my neck and back were in a brace that did not allow me to move a whole lot.

So now because of your mandates, I am being further punished. Men are not required to present all of these documents, so it is unlawful to require that women present all of these documents.

The state of Nevada has the same requirements for ID as the federal government since it will all be mandatory by 2020 anyway. DHS is leading the way for discrimination across the entire USA. Since these original documents have to be presented to the SSA upon name changes, women should be able to get a certified copy of said name changes through SSA and use that as proof of legal name changes. After all, SSA is part of the federal government.

Mr. (b)(6)

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

A REAL ID compliant card will be accepted at all Federal facilities, departments and agencies as a proof of identification. We are uncertain under what circumstances the DC MDV would not except a Maryland REAL ID compliant card. While training and information sharing regarding the REAL ID program are necessary for all levels of government, you may have spoken to a mis-informed employee.

We strive to keep our website as up to date as possible and I encourage you to seek it out if you have any further questions or concerns.

You can find the latest information and requirements regarding the REAL ID program at the link below:

Subject: REAL ID Enforcement

Hello,

I contacted the DC DMV Department of the Director about accepting my Maryland Driver's License as a REAL ID, which you list as a compliant State for REAL ID's (<http://www.dhs.gov/real-id-enforcement-brief>), however, DC states that they will not accept my Maryland license as a REAL ID credential, because they are not compliant? So either, DC is incorrect in applying what is a valid real ID or your page has erroneous information. It also list New York as a non-compliant State, while the Director's office at the DC DMV stated that New York is one of the few compliant State's. I am hoping you can contact the District of Columbia and ensure that they are applying your regulations correctly. Thank you!

Respectfully,

Subject: Question about REAL ID and compliant driver's licenses

Hello,

We have been coordinating with someone at a federal facility regarding its hosting a meeting for our Members. He passed along information about REAL ID requirements to access his facility, but I have a follow-up question regarding compliant driver's licenses.

Are those licenses that were issued some time ago likely to be compliant? For example, one of our attendees possesses a District of Columbia driver's license, but it was not issued recently. I see that DC is on the Compliant list, but am not sure if compliance is linked to when the ID was issued?

I appreciate your help.

Thank you for your non-answer. This is discrimination. It is DHS that is causing the discrimination. It just cost me over $100 to order all the documents needed to prove the chain for my name. I had all of these documents until my ex-husband threw me down a flight of stairs. After being released from the hospital my best friend came to get me. I had an hour and a half to grab all that I could to start over in a new life before my ex was released from jail. At the time my neck and back were in a brace that did not allow me to move a whole lot.

So now because of your mandates, I am being further punished. Men are not required to present all of these documents, so it is unlawful to require that women present all of these documents.

The state of Nevada has the same requirements for ID as the federal government since it will all be mandatory by 2020 anyway. DHS is leading the way for discrimination across the entire USA. Since these original documents have to be presented to the SSA upon name changes, women should be able to get a certified copy of said name changes through SSA and use that as proof of legal name changes. After all, SSA is part of the federal government.

Unfortunately the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) does not have the authority to direct the state DMV's to modify their policies. DHS has established minimum standards for the issuance of driver's licenses and identification cards as part of the REAL ID Act, how a state implements those standards is up to them.

It is a requirement that applicants must show a connection between the name on their proof of identity and date of birth document and the name they are currently using. Apparently the state DMV was not satisfied with the documents you presented. Subject: Request for assistance from Texas State Representative Ruth Jones McClendon 070115

Good afternoon,

I found your email address on this web page, <http://www.dhs.gov/real-id-enforcement-brief>, while doing some research about REAL ID Act issues as they do (or do not) affect Texas. My understanding is that Texas has been granted an OHS extension from compliance with REAL ID requirements.

The specific situation we are trying to address calls for some specific information from the OHS concerning a San Antonio constituent of Representative McClendon, who is a senior Member of the Texas House of Representatives.

The widow we are trying to assist does not need or want a driver's license, as she is 102 and does not intend to drive. Apparently, she does, however, need an election ID certificate and/or a personal ID certificate, in order to vote in elections held in Texas, and in order to travel by air to an important family gathering in the near future. She was born in Pennsylvania, and it is not clear if there ever was a birth certificate issued for her. Pennsylvania vital records has informed us that she would need a photo ID to obtain a copy of her birth certificate, if there is one, and pay a fee. She has a marriage license, a Texas voter registration card, Social Security card, Medicare identification, and other standard forms of identification. However, it seems she is being blocked by the Department of Public Safety office from obtaining a photo ID and was not allowed to cast her vote in person at a recent election in San Antonio because she did not have photo ID.

Can you clarify what federal requirements, if any, would affect her request for the Texas Department of Public Safety to issue a photographic personal ID certificate and/or election ID certificate for her? Is there any U.S. law or regulation that would prevent the Texas DPS from honoring her request to obtain a state-issued personal ID or election ID certificate?

Thank you for your help,

Janis Reinken

I need to correct a point below. Minnesota does not have a grace period. The grace period only applies to states with an expiring extension receive.

My apologies for the confusion.

Ms. (b)(6)

Attached please find a letter updating our findings for Minnesota. Our review concluded that Minnesota has not provided adequate justification to receive an extension.

To give your state an opportunity to provide additional information or take actions you deem appropriate, DHS is providing a grace period on enforcement until January 10, 2016. After that time, if Minnesota has not received an extension, Federal agencies will be prohibited from accepting driver's licenses and identification cards issued by your state in accordance with the REAL ID phased enforcement schedule.

Please let me know if you have any questions or wish to discuss.

Best Wishes,

Ms. (b)(6)

Thank you for contacting the Office of State Issued ID Support.

You would be able to use the ID, however, in the future it will be considered non-compliant and would not be a valid for air travel.

We have not set the date for REAL ID enforcement at the airports except for notifying the public that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) will continue to accept driver's licenses and state-issued identification cards from all jurisdictions at least until 2016. DHS will ensure the public has ample advanced notice before identification requirements for boarding aircraft change. That notice will include information on the process for individuals with a non-compliant driver's license or identification card to be able to travel by aircraft.

You can find an acceptable list of ID's for airline travel from TSA here:
<http://www.tsa.gov/traveler-information/acceptable-ids>

You can find the latest information and requirements regarding the REAL ID program at the link below:
